

MIXING BUSINESS

WITH PLEASURE:

TODAY'S BUSINESS TRAVELERS ARE NO STRANGERS TO BAD BEHAVIOR

RISKY HABITS HAVE A WAY OF REVEALING THEMSELVES ON THE ROAD...

27%

of business travelers admit to binge drinking while traveling on the job

11%

of business travelers have "picked up" a stranger while on a work trip

have admitted to picking someone up on every business trip

...BUT EMPLOYEES ARE RARELY THE ONES TO REPORT THEIR BAD BEHAVIORS

8%

of business travelers admit to lying to their employers about activities on a work trip

4%

of business travelers have been detained by police while on a work trip

ALL TOO OFTEN, IT'S THEIR EMPLOYERS WHO HAVE TO DEAL WITH THE CONSEQUENCES

LEGAL

Assault, robbery, drug use

FINANCIAL

Litigation, lost productivity

REPUTATIONAL

Damaged relationships, credibility and public perception

PEOPLE

Accidental injuries, illnesses, threats to personal safety

WHILE BUSINESS TRAVELERS

should be held accountable for acting in a safe, responsible manner, employers must be proactive in setting—and enforcing—appropriate expectations for their traveling employees.

IT'S ESSENTIAL TO IMPLEMENT

a comprehensive Travel Risk Management program to help prevent these risky behaviors from harming your employees and your business.
